Halt Red Push on Blazing Korean Front; Sentiment Rises for Mobilization at Home

Want Action On Prices, Rationing

Backers for Limited Economic Controls Fear Big Demand for All-Out Plan

Listen to Baruch

Asks Stand-by Law Be Ready for Truman to Use at Once

Washington, July 29 (AP)—Backers of President Truman's request for limited economic controls fought today to stem a rising tide of sentiment in Congress for all-out mobilization of the home front.

In the House, support for consumer price controls and rationing was so strong that leaders were reported concerned over their chances to sidetrack those proposals in favor of action on Mr. Truman's milder requests.

In the Senate, backers of the drastic controls forced the Banking Committee to abandon plans for action on the Truman proposals until Monday, so the all-out controls can be put into shape to be offered either as an amendment or as a substitute.

The mounting pressure for complete war time mobilization stemmed largely from elder statesman Bernard Baruch's testimony this week that immediate "ceilings on everything" are imperative.

Baruch put in another plug for this viewpoint yesterday in a telephone conversation with chairman Malbank (D-S.C.) of the Banking Committee. At the very least, Malbank quoted him as saying, wage-price controls and rationing should be written into law on a stand-by basis.

Power for Truman

That would give Mr. Truman power to invoke the controls, but only when he felt they were necessary.

While the President told his news conference Thursday that broad consumer controls are not yet needed, one Capitol official who usually is in touch with the White House told a reporter the President would be glad to get the added controls on a stand-by basis.

Mr. Truman's Council of Economic Advisors is reported to feel that the current nationwide wave of buying is a "speculative flurry" which will die down without the need for drastic action.

But Baruch was quoted as saying that the priorities and allocation controls sought by the President will not stop further price rises.

Ask Approval to Run Kerhonkson, Shokan Bus Line

New York, July 29 (Special)—Edward D. Decker of Kerhonkson asked the Public Service Commission at a hearing in New York Friday for temporary authority to operate a bus line between Kerhonkson and Shokan.

Decker, testifying before P.S.C. hearing examiner John F. O'Brien, said that the proposed line would provide service to an area presently without public transportation and would be heavily used by summer residents of the area to make connections for buses to Kingston and Ellenville.

The Kerhonkson man said he planned to make two round trips daily and three on Friday. Fares would range from 25 cents for a short ride to $1.00 for the through trip of 24.4 miles from Kerhonkson to Shokan, Decker said. The route, primarily along Route 76, would pass through Pataunkung, Jamiesville, Krumville, Olive Bridge and other communities, according to Leroy Lounsbury of Ellenville, attorney for Decker.

Lounsbury said that Decker's buses would be timed to meet Shortline, Eagle Bus Line, and Pine Hill Bus Corp. buses en route to Kingston. Decision was reserved by O'Brien.

Ulster Civilian Defense Director

HOWARD C. SHURTLE
Cluett Schantz of Marlborough, chairman of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors, on Friday announced the appointment of Howard C. Shurtler of 10 St. James street as Ulster County Civilian Defense Director.

On Friday Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk also announced the appointment of Sherwood E. Davis as director of the city Civilian Defense.

Howard C. Shurtler, a World War II veteran, has been Director of the Ulster County Veterans Service Agency since March 1, 1947, when he was appointed to succeed Harry M. Karmaghan. Last February he was named chairman-supervisor of observation posts for the county.

Mr. Shurtler, prior to entering service, was employed in The Freeman advertising department. He served with the 7th Armored Division during the war and received the Purple Heart for wounds received in Holland and in Belgium. He was first wounded while serving as a machine gunner with the 38th Armored Infantry Battalion in Holland and on being discharged from a hospital in England returned to his outfit during the battle of the Bulge and was again wounded while serving in Belgium.

The 7th Armored Division in which Director Shurtler served was commanded by General Robert F. Hushbrock of Kingston.

Korean Campaign Ribbon

Washington, July 29 (AP)—The army probably will issue a Korean campaign ribbon. The proposal for such recognition of soldiers who are fighting the United States' latest war is under study by the personnel branch of the army, a spokesman said today. It would be the 19th service medal or ribbon issued since a ribbon of two bands of blue and gray was issued to the federal troops who fought in the Civil War. Four such decorations—the American Defense Service Medal, the American Defense Ribbon, the European-African-Middle East Ribbon and the Asiatic-Pacific Ribbon—were issued just before and during World War II.

Will Demand Recount

Oklahoma City, July 29 (AP)—Johnston Murray won the Democratic nomination for governor by 1,009 votes, but William C. Coe said he will demand a recount today. Official tabulations yesterday gave Murray 235,943 votes and Coe 234,934 in last Tuesday's runoff primary. The deadline for filing recount petitions with the state election board is 12 noon (C.S.T.) today. After a bitter campaign Coe charged the election had been stolen from him and asserted that some election officials were going to the penitentiary as a result.

Calls for Irish Brigade

Dublin, Ireland, July 29 (AP)—An Irish soldier who served as a brigadier in the British Army in World War II called today for the formation of an Irish brigade to fight in Korea. Brig. E. Dorman O'Gowan made the proposal in a letter to the Dublin newspaper Irish Independent. "Korea," he said, "is not a private war, it is a crusade. Ireland through Russian machinations is not in the United Nations and cannot be formally called on for help."

Lapo Is Elected Vols' President

Medals Are Given Former Heads; Parade Is at 2 P. M.

At election of officers Friday night, Reginald J. Lapo of Woodstock was chosen president of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association.

After being honored with the presidency, Lapo called for continued cooperation by companies and individuals of the association throughout the ensuing year.

Last night's business session in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium interspersed the spirit of gaiety that goes with firemen's conventions.

Parade Today

For the opening Thursday night there was a five-act vaudeville show and today the big climax was to end with the usual colorful parade, scheduled for 2 p. m.

Lapo has been serving as head of the organization since last April 7, when he moved up from first vice president to fill the post left vacant by the death of Charles Elmendorf of Rifton.

Since the election, one of the highlights of the county convention, past president badges were awarded to twelve former heads of the association.

Elected with Lapo were George W. Gardner, Saugerties, first vice president; Percy Bush, Town of Ulster, second vice president; Fred C. Harder, Kingston, secretary (re-elected for the ninth term); Henry DuBois, New Paltz, treasurer (re-elected for the seventh term); Harold DeVries, Saugerties, director for five years; Edwin T. Kolts, Kingston, delegate to the New York State Firemen's Association.

Mayor Presents Badges

Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, a member of Vicks Engine Co., said he considered it a rare privilege to present the past presidents' badges, which went to the following volunteers:

John T. Groves, Albert Cashdollar, Benjamin Litchford, Adam Ulrich, Charles Turner, Merlin Snyder, Thomas Ingham, Ralph Lyons, L. E. Dunne, Edward Malnes, Robert Snyder, Morton Finch and Reginald Lapo.

Three past presidents have died, Edward Moran, who served as first head of the organization when it was formed on April 15, 1935; David R. Hillson and Charles Elmendorf.

These and other deceased members were remembered in the invocation by the Rev. Frank L. Golinick, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, chaplain of the Kingston Paid Fire Department.

Hanley Declares He's Not Too Old To Succeed Dewey

Tireless Campaigner Is Ready for Speaking Tour; 'Not the Man Democrats Want'

By HARRY O'DONNELL
Albany, N. Y., July 29 (AP)—Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley says he's not too old at 74 to succeed Thomas E. Dewey as Republican governor of New York.

"I'm ready for anything. I have never felt better physically in my life," Hanley declared yesterday upon his return from a 15-day, Iowa vacation.

The tireless campaigner also said his 23 years in state service provided him with the experience to meet the responsibilities of the governor's office and to handle any wartime state crisis.

"I knew just what the responsibilities entailed when I announced my candidacy," he said. "If I didn't feel that I was thoroughly competent, physically and mentally, to handle the job of governor, I wouldn't take the nomination."

When Governor Dewey announced on June 27 he would not run for reelection, most Republican state and county leaders swiftly pledged their support to Hanley for the gubernatorial nomination.

Hanley formally announced his candidacy two days later and promised to carry out Dewey's liberal policies, "if nominated and elected."

Political observers expect that only Hanley's name will be presented to the state convention (Continued on Page 10, Col. 7)

Sharp Senate Fight Now Appears Brewing Over Foreign Spending

Washington, July 29 (AP)—With prospects that President Truman soon will ask $4,000,000,000 more to re-arm U. S. allies, a sharp Senate fight appeared brewing today over how much can safely be spent on European recovery.

There was renewed talk on diverting into the arms program some funds earmarked for economic assistance to western Europe.

Democratic and Republican leaders of Congress will meet at the White House Monday to discuss the new arms aid proposal with Mr. Truman, Secretary of Defense Johnson and Secretary of State Acheson.

Word that the increase may total $4,000,000,000 came from several sources, including Republican senators who conferred yesterday with John Foster Dulles, Acheson's Republican adviser.

It would augment the $1,222,500,000 authorization already approved by Congress to furnish arms during the current fiscal year to nations abroad.

There were reports that the United States is going to insist that its defense partners bear a sizeable share of the rearmament burden themselves. One military leader said that if they get $12,000,000,000 from this country over the next three years, they will have to put up $8,000,000,000 of their own.

The reported new arms-aid request would almost double the spending previously recommended by the Senate Appropriations Committee for all foreign-aid—economic as well as military.

The committee approved a total of $4,522,158,729 for all foreign aid in the general appropriations bill now before the Senate. The largest item in this total is $2,381,930,000 in new money and $2,140,228,729 in carryover funds for the Marshall Plan—a total of $2,668,691,473.

Senator Kern (R-Mo.) a bitter foe of administration foreign policies, has pending an amendment to cut the new cash to $1,950,000,000 do away with the carryover entirely.

Senator Hayden (D-Ariz.) on the other hand, has offered an amendment to hike the cash figure to $2,450,000,000.

Civilian Defense Heads Issue Call For Volunteers

Names of Patriotic Local Men and Women Willing to Serve Are Sought

In a scene reminiscent of the early days of World War 2, civilian defense heads met at the mayor's office here Friday afternoon and issued a call for volunteers to serve as aircraft spotters, if the need arises.

Names of patriotic men and women of Kingston willing to serve are sought. Actual duties of maintaining a watch for aircraft will not start until official notice is received, but a list of volunteers will be compiled so that this city will be ready at a moment's notice to take its place in any necessary civilian defense move.

Top-level defense set-up is "in readiness and on call," Mayor Newkirk announced Friday afternoon after consulting with his defense chiefs. The appointment of Sherwood E. Davis of Richmond Park as local civilian defense director, was announced Friday (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

Orders Are 'Fight to The Death'

Yanks Won't Give One More Inch, Declares General Walker as He Visits Front

Red Losses Heavy

Korean Losses to Date Estimated at 31,000, 170 Tanks Destroyed

Tokyo, July 29 (AP)—Under orders to "fight to the death," American infantrymen held their mountain positions today against waves of attacking North Korean Communists.

The order to fight it out on their present lines came from Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the U. S. 8th Army, in an unheralded visit to a front-line command post.

"My army is not going to give up one more inch," Walker said. "We will stand."

American infantrymen showed their willingness to back up this order by strong counterattacks that checked a big Communist push and piled up the North Korean dead. Red pressure shifted. But their guns and infantry continued to hammer at American and South Korean lines.

By mid-afternoon Saturday there were no marked or important changes in the line, a spokesman for General MacArthur's headquarters said.

Planes Blast Supplies

American warplanes slipped in under the clouds to blast Red troops and trucks and blast two enemy held towns.

"This operation was definitely has entered its critical stage," Walker said after flying over the front and conferring with his division commanders. "We will hold the positions we have and fight it out here."

He said he had "bright" hopes of reinforcements was "absolutely confident of success," and added: "Everyone must fight to the death without any thought of withdrawal from Korea."

The Reds were taking heavy losses. More than 3,000 died before the blazing ruins of the U. S. 1st Cavalry and 25th Infantry divisions. How many Reds were wounded none could tell.

An assessment of North Korean losses to date listed 31,000 Reds killed or wounded, 170 tanks destroyed and 100 others damaged. A spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters called the figures "conservative."

Expect Fresh Troops

News of reinforcements from Okinawa, American airbase island in the Ryukyus south of Japan, was reported reliably but unofficially. They were not men (Continued on Page 10, Col. 1)

49 Perish When Brazilian Plane Crashes Into Hill

Rio de Janeiro, July 29 (AP)—All 49 persons aboard perished last night when a Brazilian Constellation crashed near Porto Alegre. It was the worst disaster in the country's aviation history.

Among the 43 passengers was Ralph Motley, 48, an American, sales manager in Rio for the Atlantic Refining Company. He came here from Richmond, Ind. All the other passengers and crew members were believed to be Brazilians.

Witnesses said the plane circled Porto Alegre for an hour and a half in heavy weather and then smashed into Goat's Hill about 20 miles outside of town. It may have hit a high tension wire in the vicinity. Porto Alegre is about 700 miles southwest of Rio on the Brazilian coast.

Family owners of the plane, said rescue crews sped to the scene immediately. The glow from the burning plane led them up the hill through heavy rain. A local radio station reported they found only charred bodies when they reached the wreckage.

Cashed in Liquor Stores

Washington, July 29 (AP)—Six percent of all public assistance checks passed out here in May were cashed in local liquor stores, the Board of Public Welfare said yesterday. It said it has ordered an investigation. Director Gerard Shea said the evidence isn't as bad as it looks. He said some of the checks had second endorsements, indicating they weren't cashed in liquor stores by the recipients.

Closet Now Planned For Functional Duties

The old-fashioned, general-purpose storage closet lost out in the modern home. Closets are now planned and organized to perform special storage functions, such as providing space for bridge tables, ironing boards, vacuum cleaners, step ladders and kitchen aprons. In bedrooms, fitted wardrobes with sliding doors save space and turn the old-time closet into a functional, easy-to-use part of the room.

The handy kitchen counter, with drawers or shelves in the lower part, is also moving into the bedroom as functional equipment.

For Kitchens and Baths
Structural glass used in kitchens and bathrooms is impervious to moisture, odors, and ordinary acids and due to its sparkling finish may be easily cleaned with a damp cloth.

THE SPRING GLEN

Home Features Large Picture Windows

Picture windows are the outstanding feature of this modern, one-story, six-room house "Spring Glen" introduced today by the Home of the Week Plan Service.

The large windows, the set-back dining room at left and the gable break, over the paneled front door give the house a distinctive appearance. The vertical lines of the wrought iron hand-rail and the steps give height.

Three good-sized bedrooms, a large living room, kitchen, dining room and bath make up the house which has over-all dimensions of 40' x 26' and a cubic footage of 18,600'. At least a 50' lot would be required.

Clapboards painted a light color, and dark trim add to the attractiveness of the house.

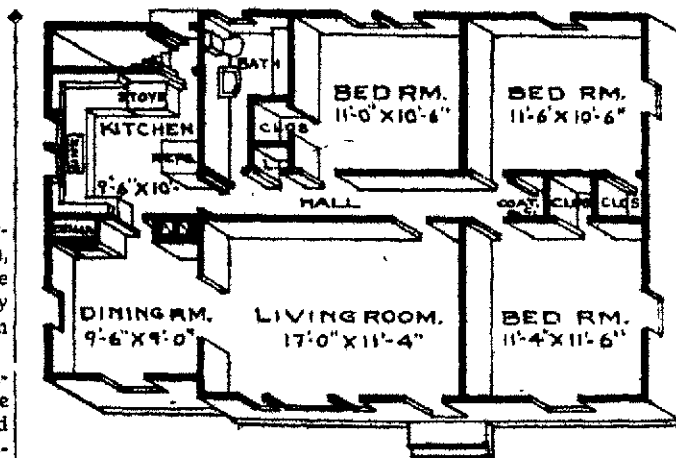

Spacious Living Room
The front door opens into the spacious 17' x 11 1/4' living room. The dining room is visible through an open archway at the far left end of the living room. The large picture window makes the outdoors appear as part of the room, adding to its enjoyment. On the inside wall is a doorway leading to the long hall which runs through the center of the house. This leads to a clothes closet, all three bedrooms, the bath and kitchen.

Along the inside wall of the 9'6" x 9' dining room is a built-in china closet which balances the chimney projection on the opposite side of the swinging door into the kitchen.

There is a picture window and also another window in the dining room.

U-Shaped Kitchen
Stepping into the kitchen, you find the popular U-shaped layout. At the end of the rear arm of the U is the stove, the rest of the U being taken up with overhead cupboards and counters, which also contain cupboards and shelves. The double windows give excellent light to the sink placed beneath them and to the working area of the counters.

The refrigerator is strategically placed on the inside wall near the outside door and within easy access of stove and counters.

This admirably designed kitchen is indeed a wife-saver.

At the right of the kitchen is the long hall. Immediately to the left are the bathroom and a linen closet. The next door opens into the smallest of the three bedrooms. This 11' x 10'6" room has a large closet and two windows on the back wall.

Continuing down the hall, the living room is on the right. At the end of the hall is the closet and to either side are the bedrooms.

The master-bedroom at the front of the house has the third of the picture windows as well as another window. A good-sized closet is located in a line with the hall closet and the closet in the back bedroom, so that there are no inconvenient jogs in either room.

Cross Ventilation
Two windows provide cross ventilation in the rear corner bedroom which is 11'6" x 10'6". The heating system in the full cellar would be located beneath the dining room and the remainder of the cellar used for the owner's convenience.

There is ample storage space in the attic, which is ventilated by windows at opposite ends. The arrangement of this house fulfills the popular "growing" house trend. Very little imagination or alteration of plan is required to envision this. The four rooms to the left of the door could be built first and the two bedrooms at the right when required.

House Insulation Has Three Main Purposes

Efficient insulating material, properly applied, serves three main purposes. It offers resistance to outside heat within the dwelling, and in the event of a fire prevents the flames from rushing upward through the hollow walls and destroying the building.

It is, of course, less costly and easier to apply insulation at the time the house is built, but it is possible to insulate existing houses at costs that are not prohibitive in many cases.

There are several types of insulation on the market that have been found suitable for use in dwellings. The choice of insulation should be made by an expert, either an architect or an engineer.

How to Avoid Spattering

There'll be less chance of spattering on floor, furniture and fingers if home painters follow these tips: Glue a paper plate under the paint can to catch drippings and provide a place to lay the brush when not in use. This also helps prevent the can from tipping over. Tie a piece of cord tightly over the top of the can and, after dipping the brush in the paint, wipe off excess on the cord.

Wood in New Homes

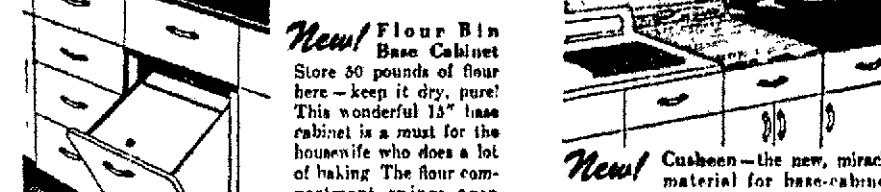

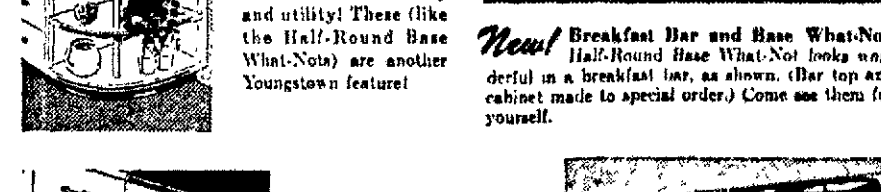

If a new house is to be painted and it is felt that there may be danger from the moisture in the wood or in the plaster, apply a priming coat of paint, and delay the application of the finishing coats for two or three weeks. The priming coat of paint being a single coat, allows the moisture in the wood or plaster to evaporate more readily. For a while this priming coat prevents any substantial amount of rain from coming in and causing warping and shrinking of the wood.

TEACHING FRIENDSHIP
In its recent meeting in Ottawa, the World Organization of the Teaching Profession spent some time discussing the highly controversial proposal that national prejudices should be eliminated from school textbooks as a step toward achieving peaceful relations among peoples and nations. It is pointed out that many of the prejudices and distrusts between nations grow from the treatment of the history of their relations in the schools, more than from present situations.
Attempts to change that usually draw immediate criticism on the ground that history is to be distorted and the glorious past of the nation besmirched. Yet prejudices which grow from textbooks come not so much from what is said about one's own nation as from what is said about others. It has been a common point of historic and descriptive writings in all nations that in discussing other lands and peoples the tendency is to make the most of differences, of backwardness or quaintness, and of the record of wars, and to lost sight of the similarities, small contributions to the common good, and efforts of understanding. "War makes rattling good history, but Peace is poor reading," observed Thomas Hardy, and he seems not to have been alone in his thought.
We can readily recognize that it is wrong to distort history with the deliberate aim of making the historian's nation always appear in a good light, to the disadvantage of others. It would be equally wrong to falsify history to wipe out or gloss over the enemies of the past, since knowledge of them is necessary to an understanding of the present. The teaching of history and geography ought to be factual, and free from the discoloration of emotions, either personal or national, as nearly as human frailty permits.

A JOB FOR AMERICANS
If it was not so before, it certainly is clear from the President's recommendations to Congress on the situation in Korea that there is a tough job to be done there, and that all Americans must help to do it. His requests are for substantial man power for the services, controls over industry and business, and a fund of ten billion dollars.
The money expended in a military campaign is the less important item of its cost. Far more significant are the lives lost and injuries suffered, the extravagant consumption of materials and energies, and the disruption of the nation's normal economy. Yet the money cost is what makes the first startling impression. Ten billion dollars is instantly recognizable as a big sum; it is an addition of about one fourth to the previous national budget and will presumably multiply by three the amount of the anticipated deficit for the current fiscal year. When this cash price tag on the Korean operation is appreciated, then perhaps it can be realized how great may be the accompanying price in real wealth and humanity.
We have a job to do, and it is not an easy, casual one. For most of us the chief part at the outset is to calm down, to realize that we are in for a hard pull and adjust our stride to it, to avoid doing foolish, panicky things like rushing to buy up tires or sugar or something else. The more quickly we buckle down to the job at hand, the sooner we should be able to end it.

NO PARKING TODAY
New York City traffic authorities, who are indefatigable in the invention of new schemes for dealing with the problems which the automobile presents to city administration, have cooked up one for a question familiar to city authorities everywhere: How to clean the streets under parked cars? Their plan, naturally, is intended to make certain that no cars will be there when the cleaners want to brush up a given side of the street.
In an experimental section of the city, motorists soon will encounter a new parking regulation sign which will inform them that no parking is permitted on that side of the street on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. On the opposite side of the same street he will find that parking is prohibited on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. On Sundays he can recklessly park on either side.
This seems to be a drastic innovation, one

INITIATIVE
In war, the side which holds the initiative to determine the time and place of action has a tremendous advantage over the foe. It is not necessarily true that that side will ultimately win, because other factors play their part, especially in a long war. Hitler held the initiative for most of World War II, but he could not win that war because he was outproduced in the mills and factories of America. Japan held the initiative until her food supply was cut off by the American navy.
In the present war in Korea, the initiative is held by Soviet Russia which can determine the time and place of action. Korea, Formosa, French Indo-China, Hongkong, Pakistan, Iran, Turkey, Greece, Yugoslavia, Germany—any of these might have been selected as the arena of battle. Any of these places might be chosen for the next battle in a prolonged, costly and irritating war.
The Russian holds the initiative for two reasons:
1. His geographical position in the heartland of the Eurasian continent, guarded by a system of bulwark satellites, makes it possible for him to throw out tentacles far from his center, without at any time or in any place employing his own forces or giving overt appearance of direct participation.
2. So, the Russian has the advantage of prolonged preparation, having determined on this course in the 1920's. Twice before World War II, the Russian experimented with procedures, one in China between 1924 and 1927; again in the Spanish Civil War in 1936. The techniques worked out during these experiments have been employed in all the satellite states and in the development of associated revolutionary groups in many countries.
The conquest of China, for instance, for Soviet Russia imperils every country in the Far East and could lead to a total Marxification of Asia. This is the reason for Nehru's fears and his appeasement of Mao Tse-tung. He is in very grave danger. So, the destruction of Tito could force Greece into the Marxist federation.
It is to be noted that Soviet Russia seized the initiative at Tehran in November, 1943, and has since held it. The United States was in November, 1943, at the highest peak of her war potential and political power. The assumption of moral leadership could have given this country the initiative. However, those who went to Tehran, Roosevelt, Hopkins, Harriman, were guided by principles of appeasement to such a degree that they vitiated the Cairo declaration agreed upon only a few days before.
It is not necessary to go into motives. History has little use for the alibi. If a man's idea turns out to be correct, he is an heroic figure, no matter what his contemporaries thought of him; if his concepts, no matter how grandiose in appearance, lead to the debasement or destruction of his country, history, in time, classifies him as a patsy or a villain.
All we can say at this moment is that at Tehran the United States lost the initiative and Soviet Russia took it. One factor in this needs to be recalled. Just before World War II started, Stalin and Hitler, signed an alliance, the details of which appear in the Ribbentrop-Molotov pact, in accordance with which the Eurasian continent was divided between Germany and Russia. The first publication, in this country, of the Ribbentrop-Molotov pact, I believe, appeared in this column and was at the time denounced as fantastic.
It has since been established as an historic document and is still the guide to Russian action. The dividing line in Europe is the Elbe-Trieste line; all of Asia is included in the Russian sphere. The Yalta agreements modified this blueprint somewhat, but recognized its broad outlines. General MacArthur, to some extent, spoiled it by his conduct in Japan, and Chiang Kai-shek interfered with its perfect performance by refusing to fold up and die. In a word, at Yalta and Potsdam, Russia's initiative was confirmed, and more recently it has been strengthened in the persistent effort of Great Britain, India, and the State Department to have Soviet China recognized by the U.N.
Until Russia's possession of the initiative is broken, this country is in peril and we need to approach our problems that way. Those who permit Soviet Russia to take the initiative may be incapable of devising means to seize it from Stalin. (Copyright, 1950, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

ULCERATIVE COLITIS
Many of us are familiar with the story of how the living of the stomach and the action of the stomach digestive juice on food was studied by means of an open gunshot wound which exposed the inside of the stomach. We are all more or less familiar with the fact that when an organ is manufacturing a juice there is an increased flow of blood to the lining of the organ and this lining, pale in color, becomes red because of this extra flow of blood. An example is the cotton color in which lining of nose becomes a deeper red because of extra flow of blood.
One of the meanest ailments that affects mankind is what is known as ulcerative colitis, the formation of a heavy mucus and pus in the colon (lower bowel). In the mild form of colitis, mucous colitis, there is an extra flow of water from lining of colon, but no pus formation. The mucous colitis is just persistent diarrhea.
For years it has been known that, just as emotional disturbances can cause the heart to beat rapidly, perspiration to appear on forehead, hands and feet and other body changes, so can emotional disturbances cause irritation and increased flow of liquid in the colon. Where the emotional disturbances are continuous and due to the make-up of the individual, this slight irritation may increase so greatly that it becomes a real inflammation of lining of colon, which becomes ulcerated with pus formation.
Just as the stomach wound enabled the investigators to watch the action of the stomach, so opportunities came for examination of the colon of four patients who had undergone operation, leaving the lining of the colon exposed to view. In "The Journal of the American Medical Association," Dr. William J. Grace, Stewart Wolf and Harold G. Wolf, New York, report their observation of this process and activity of the colon and recorded it by photographs and moving pictures. They found that when patient was calm, the lining of the colon was pale, quiet, slack, with thin mucous secretion on it. During phases of anger and resentment the colon (bowel) was redder, overactive, perspired for some time bleeding and ulceration occurred. The lesson here is that these patients with colitis, mucous or severe, must acquire calmness of spirit, by religion or otherwise, if they wish to avoid operation.

Diet Suggestions in Mucous Colitis
Many ailments, such as mucous colitis, require that we obtain a calm outlook on life. "Diet Suggestions in Mucous Colitis," a leaflet issued by Dr. Barton, may help many. The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—The other day I suggested that President Truman, who is not exactly the persuasive leader Franklin Roosevelt was, needed a lot of support from the rest of us in the current crisis, which is a lot worse than most people have realized. One thing he needs is some help in making the country understand what the Korean war is all about.
As my own contribution, I should like to set down a few reminiscences regarding other international efforts to stop war, which I have watched during some years of experience as a newspaperman.
The Korean war is basically an international gamble aimed at heading off a greater war; and while it may fail, you have to look back 25 years to understand what progress the world has made in the painfully difficult job of making men and nations work together to set up international machinery for peace.
As a young newspaperman in 1925, I went down to Havana with Calvin Coolidge, his secretary of state, Frank B. Rowland, and Charles Evans Hughes, all Republicans in good standing with the party. At Havana, they put forward to the Pan American nations a policy of keeping the peace by international arbitration.
This was not a revolutionary proposal. When trouble occurred between nations, they proposed the common-sense idea of going to court. But when the treaty later got back to the U. S. Senate, the sparks flew. And some Republican isolationists called Coolidge, Hughes and Kellogg just as vitriolic names as McCarthy has called the State Department.
Consult Re War
Two years later, I accompanied a new Republican secretary of state, Henry L. Stimson, to the London naval conference. There Stimson did his best to put across a consultative pact—again not a revolutionary proposal. It merely provided that, if war threatened, the United States would agree to "consult" with the other nations of the world regarding ways of stopping war. Stimson made absolutely no promises or commitments, beyond the promise that we would merely sit down and talk.
Compared with the United Nations of today, the Stimson proposal sounds almost juvenile. But when he proposed it privately at London in 1930—just twenty years ago—Herbert Hoover, then President of the United States, nearly had kittens. He was so agitated that he called a press conference and emphatically informed the world that "no consultative pact has been considered at any time during the course of the London conference."
Simultaneously in London, Secretary Stimson, not knowing that rock-ribbed Republicans were scared stiff over even a tiny bit of international cooperation, was holding his own press conference stating exactly the opposite of his chief in the White House. A consultative pact, he said, was definitely under discussion.
In the end, Hoover showed who was boss. The consultative pact was killed; and with it the entire naval treaty.
World War II Begins
One year later, 1931—the Japanese invaded Manchuria and Secretary Stimson once again tried to secure international cooperation to head off what he knew to be the beginning of a world war. And in an effort to prod and encourage the League of Nations into a cooperative move to stop war, Stimson took the relatively mild step of ordering the U. S. Consul in Geneva to sit in on council sessions—only as an observer.
An immediate howl of protest went up from members of Stimson's own Republican party. They were so vigorous, and his chief, Herbert Hoover got so nervous, that the U. S. Consul was finally replaced by Charles G. Dawes, whom the G.O.P. isolationists trusted.
Europe Cools
Even more important, however, was the negative reaction of European members of the League of Nations. The French press screamed that they did not want the United States butting into League affairs. The British foreign office, long in sympathy with Japan, deftly undercut Stimson's crackdown on Tokyo. Mussolini, fearing his turn would be next, was distinctly cool to American cooperation. And Jap diplomats, foreseeing the day when they would go on to further aggressions, took the bolical pleasure in ridiculing Stimson, and slowly breaking down the peace machinery of the world.
For months, the league debated. But instead of the 48-hour decision made by the United Nations in the Korean crisis, it took one solid year for the league to get a report from an international commission on the Manchurian incident.
By that time, it was too late. The Jap warlords were firmly entrenched. The seeds of World War II were well planted. And, most important of all, every other would-be aggressor realized that he could thumb his nose at international law, and the League would do nothing.
An age was dying; an age of international optimism, idealism, and Harding normalcy. An age was dying and Henry L. Stimson struggled almost alone to give it renewed life.
Leaving a sickbed in the spring of 1932, he sailed for Paris determined to warn the statement of Europe that they were sealing their own doom. Renting a villa at Geneva, he called in the prime ministers of western Europe and argued that Japan's far-away aggression against China could be a greater threat to them than any menace in Europe.
He urged that they take a firm stand to bolster the world's peace machinery in order to head off war in the future.
But he failed.
Those were dark days in Stimson's villa Besings on Lake Geneva. His room looked out on an old garden sheltered by high trees, in which he could hear the cawing and cooing of birds. And sometimes, when he could not sleep and was dragged endlessly, Stimson stood at his window looking out upon the trees and the moon and the shadows they cast upon the garden, and remembered the world war days when he was a colonel of artillery in France.
Out among the poplars he saw again that line of men from the fields, the factories, the sea, going forward; and the line of women, wounded men, exhausted men, going back. A panorama of his life before him then, the latter years having been given to rebuilding equity and understanding among the peoples of the world.
And he had failed.
The importance of Korea is that in exactly the same part of the world, a few miles from the spot where the Jap warlords invaded Manchuria, Russia, twenty years later, has launched her first move in World War III.
But this time, the newly formed peace machinery of the world functioned overnight. This time again that line of men from the fields, the factories, the sea, going forward; and the line of women, wounded men, exhausted men, going back. A panorama of his life before him then, the latter years having been given to rebuilding equity and understanding among the peoples of the world.

Dorothy TerBush Becomes Bride of Alfred S. Harding

Ellenville, July 29.—An outstanding event of the summer season was the largely-attended wedding last Saturday at the Reformed Church of Miss Dorothy Jean TerBush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Boyce TerBush, Jr., of Ellenville, and Alfred Shepard Harding of Bridgton, Me., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton R. Harding of Portsmouth, N. H.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. William A. Irish, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. Wilbur E. Ivins of Park Ridge, N. J., a cousin of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown with lace bodice and marquisette skirt and cathedral train over white satin. She carried white roses, swanonia and ivy. Her illusion fingertip veil fell from a crown of orange blossoms.

The groom's honor was Miss Alice Rosekrance of Kingston, who wore a mauve satin bodice gown with mauve and aqua net skirt. Bridesmaids were Miss Gretchen VanWagenen of Lawrenceville, and Miss Marie Kimber of Syracuse. Thomas Harding of Bridgton, Vt., brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Paul E. Snook, Richard P. Moulton, Dennis Haine of Portsmouth and Edward L. TerBush, brother of the bride.

The altar and chancel were decorated for the occasion with banks of smoke tree blossoms, white lilies, gladioli and candles in tall brass candelsticks flanking the altar.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the church, hostesses being the Misses Dorothy Haydon, Edith Strick, Carol Harris, Mrs. Harold Stangel and Mrs. Wilbur Ivins.

The bride was graduated from Ellenville High School and Berkshire College of Western Mass. where she was president of Beta Chi Sigma sorority. Mr. Harding is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and did graduate work at Syracuse University and the University of New Hampshire. Following a trip to Cape Cod and New York, Mr. and Mrs. Harding will be in Bridgton, Me., where Mr. Harding is town manager.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Player Is Stung
By Bee-Line Play

By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service
"The longest way around," says the old proverb, "is the shortest way home." This is sometimes true in a bridge hand also, as today's hand indicates.

When the hand was played in a recent team-of-four match, the bidding was the same at both tables, and in each case the opening lead was the eight of hearts. In each case the queen of hearts was put up. East covered with the king, and South won with the ace. Each declarer then drew three rounds of trumps. At this point, however, they parted company.

In the first room, the declarer made a bee line for the clubs. He could see that he was bound to lose a heart and a diamond, and that the contract therefore depended on losing only one club.

His plan was to play East for a singleton or doubleton ace of clubs. He therefore led a low club from the dummy. When East played low, South put up the queen, and West won with the ace.

This sealed South's doom. No matter how he struggled from that point on, he was bound to lose two club tricks. With them went his contract.

In the other room, declarer won the third round of trumps in his own hand. Then, instead of going immediately to the clubs, he led a diamond towards dummy. East captured dummy's king of diamonds with the ace, cashed the hearts, and then returned the jack of diamonds.

Dummy won with the queen of diamonds, and South ruffed a diamond in order to lead a club from his own hand (instead of from the dummy, as the other player had done).

The important point was that South knew that West held the ace of clubs. It was true that East had bid and that West had passed throughout the bidding, but it was still clear that West had the ace of clubs!

The opening lead had indicated that East had a long heart suit headed by king-jack-ten. South had also found out that East had the ace of diamonds. Nevertheless, East had passed originally. Surely, in view of this pass, East could not also have the ace of clubs.

When South led a low club from his own hand, West played low. Dummy won with the king and returned a club. East played the ten, and South ducked, hoping that West would have to play the ace anyway. South's wish came true, and he therefore made his contract.

Sidney Howard's "The Late Christopher Bean," this week's current bill at the Woodstock Playhouse, will continue through Sunday, July 30. Cragmoor Playhouse Holds Over Comedy

Because of the tremendous response to "Born Yesterday," the Cragmoor Playhouse announced today it was holding over this "riotous laugh comedy" for another week.

Katharine Barrett, St. Oakland, Frank Overton and the entire original cast of the Cragmoor production will remain for this second week which will play Tuesday through Sunday evenings with a low priced matinee on Sunday afternoon.

The packed houses at Cragmoor this week have "merely" echoed the uproarious laughter which rocked Broadway for five years," the Playhouse said.

As Billy Dawn, the ex-chorus girl with more glamor than grammar whose idea of success in life stands at two milk coats, Katharine Barrett is scoring the greatest personal success of her career, and St. Oakland, who plays here benefactor, is giving another of the brilliant performances which has kept him one of Broadway's busiest actors.

"January Thaw," the comedy hit of the 1946 Broadway season, which was to have opened at Cragmoor on Tuesday, has been postponed for one week and will be presented starting August 8, following "Born Yesterday."

O'Dwyer Changes His Attitude on Racket Grand Jury

New York, July 29 (AP)—Mayor William O'Dwyer was apparently reconciled today to the work of the Brooklyn racket grand jury.

But he maintained his personal coolness toward District Attorney Miles McDonald of Kings county, who has masterminded the months-long probe into gambling and possible police graft.

The mayor, who recently called the grand jury methods a "witch hunt," announced his changed attitude after a conference yesterday with Kings (Brooklyn) County Judge Samuel Lebowitz.

The judge pleaded for the need to keep the grand jury free from outside pressure "from any quarter" and urged O'Dwyer and other officials not to engage in "acrimonious newspaper debate."

After the talk, O'Dwyer said he "welcomed" the probe and had "no desire to impede the work of the grand jury or the court."

But he said nothing about his relations with McDonald, which have chilled in recent weeks. The mayor is understood to have sharply resented his technique in quizzing police officers in the probe.

He made his protest public a weeks ago by marching at the head of 8,000 police in the funeral procession for Capt. John G. Flynn, who shot himself several weeks after testifying before the grand jury.

Police took the attitude that Flynn had been persecuted by McDonald and the jury, although in his suicide note Flynn said his act had no connection with the probe.

Just before his conference with the mayor, however, Judge Lebowitz released Flynn's grand jury testimony and said there was nothing in it to show Flynn was other than "a completely honest, responsible public servant."

The testimony showed Flynn had "busted" two plain clothes men who had cleared a Brooklyn address that was later successfully raided by McDonald as a gambling place.

The judge said the testimony also showed that Flynn was treated with courtesy and was not hounded.

"There is nothing whatever to show that he was intimidated, coerced—subtly or otherwise—that the proceeding was anything but a dignified elicitation of the witness' knowledge and ideas," Judge Lebowitz said.

EAT WELL for Less

GIVE SUNDAY DINNER A FILLIP
By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Chicken for Sunday—that's delicious economy these days. But serve it in a different manner. Savory chicken, Mexican style, for example, gives an exotic new flavor to familiar fivers by using tomato sauce, garlic, onion and beer or ale.

The meat flavor adds a delicious tang. As always when cooking with beer, allow to stand for a few minutes before adding to other cooking ingredients.

Savory Chicken (4 Servings)

One frying chicken, disjointed, seasoned flour, 1/2 cup salad oil, 1/2 onion, chopped, 1 garlic clove, minced, 1 8-ounce can tomato sauce, 1 1/2 cups water, 1 cup beer, salt, pepper.

Dredge chicken with seasoned flour; brown on all sides in hot oil. Add remaining ingredients; cover, simmer 30 minutes. Turn; (i) chicken is tender. Serve on hot, fluffy rice.

Savory and tangy, this favorite Italian-style dish is equally well liked in the United States. It's simple to cook and a rich, hearty dish for a hungry family any day of the year.

Chicken Cacciatore (4 to 6 Servings)

Two and one-half to 3 1/2-pound all-purpose chicken, ready-to-cook weight, disjointed, 1/2 cup olive oil or other fat, 1 thinly sliced onion, 3/4 cups canned tomatoes (or 4 medium tomatoes), 1 clove garlic, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 cup white wine, or 1/2 cup water.

Cook chicken in hot olive oil until delicately browned, turning to brown evenly. Add onions and cook until onion is transparent and golden. Add tomatoes, garlic, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer until chicken is tender and the tomatoes are reduced to a thick sauce, 40 to 50 minutes. Add wine or water last 15 minutes of cooking. Remove garlic clove before serving.

SUNDAY'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Melon cup, crisp bacon, blueberry muffins, butter or fortified margarine, coffee, milk.

DINNER: Savory chicken, steamed rice, corn on cob, butter or fortified margarine, watercress and grapefruit sections salad, French dressing, peach shortcake, cream, iced coffee, milk.

Medical Defense Plan Is Started by State

Albany, N. Y., July 29 (AP)—The State Health Department today set up an office of medical defense under Dr. James H. Lade.

The action, part of New York state's developing Civilian Defense program, was announced by Dr. Herman E. Hillier, health commissioner.

He said the new unit would develop plans for mobilization of the state's medical resources in the event of an atomic attack.

Dr. Lade, of Albany, will serve as director of the new office and continue in his present post as chief of the Department's Bureau of Medical Services.

The U. S. Public Service sent Dr. Lade to Poland in 1948 to study health conditions in that war-ravaged country. In 1947, the World Health Organization, a United Nations Agency, sent Dr. Lade to Poland and to Czechoslovakia and Greece for similar studies.

Paterson Silk Sox and Mount Vernon Reds Play at Stadium Tonight

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Short Shots at Sport:

If you will excuse the grammar, never will this department be involved into an elementary argument concerning the merits and benefits of organized ball. We think it's a wonderful venture for any community that has sufficient civic interest in baseball to sustain a franchise.

The academic poseur that the Colonial Baseball League folded and the Kingston Colonials didn't have little, if any, bearing on the acutely economic significance of tonight's semi-pro exhibition between the Mount Vernon Red Sox and Paterson Silk Sox.

We must concern ourselves with boxoffice totals these days and it is that department's fervent wish that an SRO crowd jumpstarts municipal stadium tonight. The attendance at last week's Colonial-New York Freeman game was a horrible disappointment. Baseball and the baseball operators certainly deserve a better fate than that, especially in a town that likes to brag that it's "a good baseball town."

As of July 15, 13 of the Dodgers' farm clubs were leading their respective leagues in base stealing and 10 players were individual leaders. Looks like Branch Rickey means what he says about speed. This guy (Bobby) incidentally is the same fellow who dropped about $15,000 in Kingston in 1947. Remember that year of the Great Scheme in local baseball?

Fleets and Jetsam:

The professional boxing card in Schenectady on August 2 features a promising young Schenectady heavyweight, Tommy Giorgio, who is being trained by Abe Feldman, one-time top heavyweight contender. Abe is a brother of Jackie Feldman, who was some shucks as an amateur middleweight in the old Servicer days in Kingston. . . . Five members of Wiltwyck Golf Club—Dr. Fred Holcomb, Jr., Dr. George Rifkin, Maurice Davenport, Leon Randall and Dick Davenport—are competing in the 16th annual Williamstown, Mass. golf tournament this week-end. Jack St. Clair, former Wiltwyck hot-shot, is coming in from Washington for the event. . . . A campaign to raise $75,000 for the establishment of a harness horse museum and Hall of Fame in Goshen is being inaugurated throughout the country by the founders of the recently organized Trotting Horse Museum, Inc.

Headline—Four Chess Stars Hurt. Must have bumped their heads in a furious checking operation.

"Bo" Gill, golfer, proposes a semi-pro league involving Kingston, Newburgh, Poughkeepsie and Walden. A definite sign that he's absorbing too much sun on the rolling fairways.

Gonzales Has the Right Pitch:

Mike Gonzales, the famous Cuban catcher of "good field, no hit" fame, agrees with Connie Mack that it is pitching, not a live-ball ball. "Baseball she no change, she same all time," he says in his purest Oxford accent. "But better, she more better. Young, strong, better boys. Much power. Meet ball nice. Pow! There she go. Home run!"

"But pitcher—she not so good. Mike know. Too many base on ball. Bad pitcher, good heat, that's set all over in baseball today."

The Kingston Rifle and Pistol Club would like to hear from any person who would like to grant permission for use of any even suitable for a rifle range. This place is particularly urgent, says George Mustaparta, since the club will assist the State Conservation Department in checking youngsters who apply for licenses, sighting deer rifles in the fall and training men and boys in the proper use of firearms. If you know of anyone who has a plot of land suitable for this type of activity, please contact George Mustaparta or Ted Haines.

In the case of minor leagues that fold because of bad weather, radio and television, it must be high humidity and high frequency creating low crowds.

Cocker Spaniels won the championship of the abbreviated Matinee Club League Thursday at the Bowlorium, salvaging the one game they needed from the Terriers. They won 16 and lost 11, with the Greyhounds a game behind at 15 and 12. The Terriers had a 13-14 record and St. Bernard's clocked for 10-17.

Members of the winning team are Marge Logan, Betty Monash, Rose Chamberland and Pat Pearson.

Evelyn Gross wound up her season with a rousing 572 on games of 189-204-179. The other Evelyn, Mrs. Francis, was in the usual runner-up spot but several lengths behind with 443. Marge Logan posted 407.

Among other highlights in the Men's Summer League at the Bowlorium, Ken Boughlon converted the 4-4-10 split. Lou's Cleaners extended their league lead to 11 points with a 36-8 record and Wimpys, Tiptop and Jokers tied for second with 23-9.

Frank Grimaldi posted a 256 opener and followed with 156 and 182 to tie with Nick Savino for top series of 574. Savino flashed greater consistency with 190-183-201. Lou Secora was only two points behind the leaders with 214-172-189.

That flashy Hudson kookerette, Rachel Clark, pounded out another big series in the Business Girls' League this week at the Bowlorium. . . . 55 to be exact. She had a steady flow of strikes for 168-186-201. Gladys Mullin, also of Hudson, was runner-up with 461. Sue Heins had 448, U. Bucholtz 441, B. Bailey 438 and D. Burns 420.

Herb Sleight replaced Clifton Quick as the summer leader at the Bowlorium fashioning a 581 series with 202-173-220. The first series settled for 580 via 188-233-168. Ken Williams posted 560-215-588. Mike Milano 203-570. Bill Mohr 539; Steve Leone 530; Joe Milano 208-516; A. Kaprielian

Sign Painter and Truck Missing

A sign painter employed by the Modjesko Sign Studio of this city and one of the company's trucks have been missing for a week, police learned Friday afternoon.

August P. Modjesko reported to police at 4:30 p. m. Friday that his 1937 Chevrolet one-half ton truck had been stolen and its driver missing. He told police the driver's name was William Stockwell and that his last-known address was 29 Jones street, New York city.

Stockwell, who had been employed at the local sign studio for three months, left the office on Friday, July 21, to finish two signs. Neither Stockwell nor the truck have been seen since, Modjesko told police.

A painter's scaffold that had been on the truck was found on Route 9W south of Kingston, police were informed. The truck has a red stake body and painted on both ends in the words "Modjesko Sign Studio, Complete Sign Service." Its license number was 581-802. A description of the missing truck has been given state police and sheriff's office men by the local police department.

Orders Are

tioned by General MacArthur's release.

However, the official release did report "an American roadblock" checked a southern coastal thrust at Pongye, 55 miles west of Pusan—vital southeast port supplying the allied holding action. Two other Red columns were similarly stalled in the south.

Counterattacking units of the U. S. First Cavalry and 25th Infantry divisions regained ground yielded Friday night on the central front in the critical Hwang-san sector.

The ferocity of the Communist assault was indicated by MacArthur's report that more than 2,500 Reds were killed by the First Cavalry Division. More than 800 North Korean dead were counted in front of the 27th Regimental Combat Team of the 25th Division.

In American Hands
Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported that the U. S. counter thrust had stabilized the line in that sector. At that time—about noon Saturday—Kwangsan evidently still was in American hands.

Kwangsan Is Important in this "battle of attrition." It is a key railway and highway down to 18 road miles northwest of the American supply and communications center of Kumsong.

A spokesman at MacArthur's headquarters had described the continuing action as a battle of attrition. He (the enemy) must be decided quickly. In Korea, General Walker promised Saturday the enemy would be decided.

Walker said the line would stand firm, where it is now. He added that a "Dunkirk" was impossible—a reference to the British withdrawal from Europe early in the World War II.

Except for "slight adjustments," no appreciable change in the current 200-mile mountainous front was reported in the 24-hour period up to about noon Saturday.

A powerful North Korean attack, begun early Friday against the 24th Infantry Regiment, made a "slight penetration" in American lines. MacArthur reported the ground was regained in the U. S. counter thrust.

A rifle company had been cut off in the central sector, but it was relieved by the counterattacks. MacArthur said this particular U. S. thrust regained 2,000 yards of ground. However, the Americans withdrew about half the distance to better defense.

MacArthur said the First Cavalry Division had "taken care of" a number of Reds who infiltrated the line.

In the northeast sector of the front, three South Korean divisions were engaged in heavy fighting. Slight gains for the defenders were reported from the Hamchang sector, 28 miles northeast of Hwangsan to a point south of Yongdok, on the east coast. Meanwhile, allied airpower ranged nearly the length of the peninsula—which is shaped something like Florida—bombing and strafing enemy targets.

Hanley Declares

egates at Saratoga Springs, Sept. 6-7. Enough G.O.P. leaders have pledged Hanley support to clinch the nomination for him.

The lieutenant governor, sporting a polka-dot bow tie and a light gray-checked sport coat with dark trousers, appeared rested and fit. He said he "sat and talked mostly" during the vacation at the summer camp of his brother, Charles, near Muscatine, Ia.

So many old Iowa friends came to visit, Hanley said, that he and Mrs. Hanley came home three days early to give her a rest.

The lieutenant governor and his wife will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Oct. 30. They are natives of Iowa.

Hanley, a former Chautauqua circuit lecturer, said he would resume a busy speaking schedule next week, beginning Wednesday at Schenectady. He said he had three times as many invitations as he could accept, even if "I went at it every day" between now and the state convention.

In reply to a question, Hanley said he had no preference as to a running mate for lieutenant governor. U. S. Senator.

"But I heard the Democrats have picked a ticket (for the Republicans)," he said.

Referring to reports from Democratic sources that the Republican would nominate U. S. Senator Irving M. Ives for governor and Dewey for senator, Hanley remarked:

"It's plain to me I'm not the man they (the Democrats) want to nominate."

Ives had disclaimed interest in the gubernatorial nomination and Hanley said, has pledged his support.

McDonald, The bearers all members of the American Legion and close friends of the deceased were Chester Barth, Warren Dunham, Cleon Jump, John Battagline and Donald Decker. The honorary bearers were John Henry, Edward Doyle, Joseph Beichert, Russell Maurer, Thomas Morrissey and Clifford Davis, Jr.

Would Use Veto If Necessary to Block Red China

George Doesn't Think We Can Afford to Withhold Veto if That's Only Way

Washington, July 29 (AP)—Two members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee demanded today that the United States block any move to admit Chinese Communists to the United Nations, by use of the veto, if necessary.

Senator George (D-Ga.) told a reporter that with American troops fighting Communists in Korea he doesn't think this country can afford to withhold its Security Council veto if that is the only way to bar the Chinese Communists.

In a separate interview, Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-N. J.) called on Secretary of State Acheson to make it clear at once that the United States will use every means at its command to keep the Chinese Communists out of the U. N.

The State Department has taken the position that it would be unwise at this time for the U. N. to consider the question of admitting the Mao Tse-tung government's representatives. But it has said the United States would not exercise the veto if such a showdown came.

This seemed to leave the American representatives free to maneuver actively to prevent the question's arising, as it may when Jacob A. Malik, the Soviet representative, takes over as chairman of the Security Council for August and thus ends his walkout from that body.

Civilian Defense

noon. The appointment of Mrs. George D. Logan of 68 Grand street as supervisor of civilian defense observation posts was announced earlier this year.

Mrs. Logan is charged with establishing a local observation post. This is a part of the Ground Observer Corps, Aircraft Warning Service, and operates directly under the U. S. Air Force. It is not strictly speaking, part of the civilian defense force.

Mrs. Logan had wide experience, along similar lines during World War 2. Starting with the control center, she was advanced to chief observer of the local observation post. When that post was no longer needed, she volunteered to do work with the ration board and later with the Selective Service Board. She was active in U. S. O. service and war bond drives.

Other appointments were announced Friday afternoon to bring the civilian defense set-up a step nearer completion.

Mrs. Thomas Baschall of 106 Pearl street has been appointed chief observer and Morris Cooper of 9 East Strand has been appointed deputy chief observer.

Persons willing to serve as spotters have been asked by Mrs. Logan to telephone Kingston 1544 and volunteer their services. At the present time these volunteers will be on a "stand-by" basis only and will have no duties unless they are called upon.

Mayor Newkirk began gathering his civilian defense team this week as the result of a request from General Lucius Clay, state director of civilian defense.

The mayor declined to reveal where the observation post will be located, if it becomes necessary to establish such a post. During World War 2, the observation post was erected atop the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Held for Grand Jury On Burglary Charge

Accused by police of stealing approximately $158 from a local home, John Henion, 42, of Glenrie Lake Park, was arraigned in city court today on a third degree burglary charge. He waived examination and was ordered held for grand jury action.

Detective William Krum made the arrest Friday afternoon following an investigation of a report made by Joseph DeLuca on July 22 that someone had entered his home at 68 Prince street and had stolen the amount of money.

Arrest Prison Guard

William A. Ritchie, a prison guard of 132 Main street, Canning, was arrested Friday on complaint of Cluett Schantz of Marlborough who charged that Ritchie drove his car across the white line at the Rondout creek bridge cut at Port Ewen and damaged the car of Schantz. Both cars were proceeding toward Kingston at the time. There were no injuries. The case was set down for a hearing on August 14 before Justice of the Peace John O. Beaver at Esopus. Mr. Schantz is the Republican nominee for the office of sheriff and is chairman of the board of supervisors.

Want Action

a new batch of statistics bearing on the question of controls.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported a 2 per cent rise in wholesale prices during the week which ended last Tuesday, July 25. While the index of average wholesale prices, standing at 163.7 per cent of the 1926 average, was 4.2 per cent above four weeks ago, the week's rise was the smallest since the Korean fighting started.

The Commerce Department said that during June manufacturers sold a record $20,700,000,000 worth of goods and took orders for $22,600,000,000 more. That showed that even before the Korean outbreak on June 25 business was booming.

Meanwhile, the international situation pushed farm prices up 6.5 per cent between mid-June and mid-July, the Agriculture Department reported. The department said the price level was the highest in 18 months, and added that prices have risen still further since July 15.

In another announcement relating to the Korean war's economic effect on the country, the Agriculture Department said it may buy surplus sugar from Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Hawaii to assure a plentiful supply here.

Calls Hoarders Suckers

The department has said over and over that scarce buying of sugar and other commodities is foolish because there is no shortage. Secretary Brannan said in New York yesterday that hoarders are "suckers" who give profiteers an excuse for raising prices.

Purchase of the additional sugar would give the United States the greatest stockpile of that foodstuff it ever has had in a single year.

At the same time, the administration quickened its efforts to build up a supply of other materials—those critically needed for waging war.

Mr. Truman asked Congress yesterday for: (1) $600,000,000 to step up the program of buying strategic materials for the nation's stockpile and (2) $18,000,000 to expand the work of reconditioning merchant ships in the national defense reserve fleet.

He also ordered an increase in the government's synthetic rubber production to an annual rate of 675,000 tons. The present rate is 408,000 tons.

Still another White House request is expected soon for additional money—perhaps around $4,000,000,000—to help re-arm western Europe. Congress already has authorized $1,222,500,000 this year for that purpose.

Mr. Truman called a meeting with congressional leaders for Monday to discuss the boost.

Congress also continued its swift action to shore up this country's defenses.

The Senate yesterday sent to the White House a bill empowering the President to order a search for foreign ships in U. S. waters. The purpose: to prevent an atomic bomb from being sneaked into an American harbor.

In addition, the Senate approved a $13,294,000,000 appropriation for armed forces spending—not including the additional $10,500,000,000 which Mr. Truman requested this week.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee said he would not be surprised to see even further military appropriations asked within the next 12 months.

66 Companies
After last night's session Secretary Harder said the roster of the county association contained the names of 60 companies and 1,126 men.

Indications were that this afternoon's parade would be one of the largest and most colorful in the 15-year history of the county association and that the streets along its route would be crowded with spectators.

Parade orders called for the firemen to assemble downtown at 1:30, start marching at 2 o'clock and cover the entire length of Broadway to the uptown area and thence to the New York State Armory on Manor avenue.

Civil Strife

was blown up, blocking the channel.

The capital's power plants were on reduced production and more than half the city was without public utilities.

Max Eluset, leader of the Socialist party, said he had been summoned to an audience with the king at Laeken Palace but had refused to go.

"I will only go when I know in advance that I will come out with the results you want," he told a meeting of strikers. "Belgium is a democracy which no longer accepts a king of the old kind."

What the workers want from Leopold is nothing less than his agreement he will abdicate.

The only news from Laeken, where the king has remained in seclusion since his return from Switzerland, was that he had chosen his personal secretary.

Brooklyn Men Hurt In Three-Car Crash

Two Brooklyn men were injured in a three-car accident on Route 28 one-half mile west of Kingston Friday evening. Admitted to the Benedictine Hospital were Isaac Kozak, 30, and Max Schwartz, 53, both of Hindsdale street, Brooklyn. Hospital authorities reported their conditions as "fair" today.

State police said Kozak was
